

Paramount Equipment moves to new HQ

By Lindsey Anderson | 29 October 2018

To operate more efficiently and better serve its customers, Paramount Equipment has relocated to a new headquarters in Roselle, NJ, just 15 minutes from Newark Airport.

From left to right: Dan Blum, Ricardo Magni, Vince DeRienzo and Gary Weisman.

The Magni telehandler distributor held an open house event on Oct. 25 at its 4,500-square-foot HQ which sits on 1.5 acres.

“We needed more office space for staff and training,” explained Gary Weisman, vice president of Paramount Equipment.

ready-to-go inventory of telehandlers and attachments in its yard to provide customers with immediate availability for the machines and tools they need. The new facility also comes with additional service bays that allow servicing of booms when fully extended.

“We also had the desire to increase our parts inventory in order to provide parts that are needed immediately upon request,” Weisman said. “[We can also now] efficiently store attachments and provide the parts with shelter.”

Weisman told ALH the company also wanted to have a

Ricardo Magni, founder of Magni Telehandlers, was also on-hand at the event. ALH sat down with Mr. Magni to discuss the current North American telehandler market; the full interview will be in the November/December issue.

Access Lift & Handlers - October 2018

DOWNLOAD THE LATEST ISSUE

SUBSCRIBE TO THE MAGAZINE

VIEW THE ISSUE ARCHIVE

Newsletter

Delivered directly to your inbox, Access, Lifts and Handlers contains all the latest news, product launches, show reports and more from KHL's worldwide access market.

SIGN UP FOR FREE